“ Jackie Scudder was my grandmother. She had many sisters and brothers which I find amazing to have such a big family. My grandmother had many talents. She could cook almost anything from scratch, and sew. I enjoyed visiting my grandparents for family birthdays and holidays. She was famous for her homemade chocolate pie. She made the the crust of her pies from scratch. To this day, her chocolate pies can not be matched. I have many memories of my grandmother and grandfather. One of the funniest was when we drove to visit her sister in Delaware. We listened to Patsy Cline all the way there and back. I also remember when I was in high school my mom had grounded me for a long time. I went to a dance and had worn my mom's watch. I knew I was suppose to be outside at a certain time for my mom to pick me up. I didn't want to leave the dance because I was having a great time. I told my mom when I came out her watch was broken. Quickly she discovered this was not true and I was grounded for "life." Soon after, we visited my grandparents. My grandmother asked me what was wrong because I seemed down. I told her how my mom had grounded me for "life" for not telling the truth about her watch. My grandmother told my mom this wasn't right, and she needed to not ground me for so long. Thanks to my grandmother I was relieved of being grounded for life.
